

Paralegal Studies, Bachelor of Arts

ONLINE and
ON CAMPUS

Approved by the American Bar Association, Kent State University offers a Bachelor of Arts degree in Paralegal Studies. Students can take elective classes in the areas of intellectual property law, tort law, business law, business law, and environmental law. Students will complete a series of liberal education requirements. Paralegal Studies students take courses in English composition, mathematics or logic, foreign language, humanities, fine arts, social sciences, and basic sciences. All students must complete an internship in the final stages of their coursework. Classes are offered during the day, evening, and online. Speciality courses are offered during the summer as well. Our program accommodates fulltime and part-time students.
